

MODERN SLAVERY STATEMENT 2017

INTRODUCTION FROM THE PRINCIPAL

We are committed to improving our practices to combat slavery and human trafficking. This Institution is committed to ethical conduct of all its activities and to making continuous improvements to its processes in that regard.

ST. GEORGE'S, UNIVERSITY OF LONDON'S STRUCTURE

We are the UK's only university dedicated to medical and health sciences education, training and research co-located with St. George's University Hospitals NHS Foundation Trust within St. George's Hospital in Tooting, South West London. We are a constituent college of the University of London and have long-established partnership with Kingston University in a joint faculty of Health, Social Care & Education. We have a global annual turnover of £85million.

OUR INSTITUTION

Our Institution is organised into 4 academic Institutes (Molecular and Clinical Sciences Research Institute, Institute of Infection and Immunity, Institute of Public Health and Institute of Medical and Biomedical Education) supported by central Professional Services.

OUR SUPPLY CHAINS

Our procurement services are managed under contract by Kingston University. Our supply chains mainly fall within the following 'top level' categories:

- Estates and facilities management (works, services and goods)
- ICT equipment and services
- Professional services
- Teaching and research materials

We are a member of the London Universities Purchasing Consortium (LUPC) which has also published its own Modern Slavery Statement. We channel in excess of 30% of the value of our addressable spend through LUPC and agreements arranged by the other higher education purchasing consortia and public sector purchasing consortia.

The particular business and supply chains which may pose particular risks in terms of slavery are in facilities management, ICT and AV equipment, construction, and partnerships with overseas institutions in some jurisdictions. Our due diligence processes (below) minimise these risks, and our facilities management services are provided by an outsourced provider which is appointed via the LUPC and has therefore been scrutinised and complies with the LUPC requirements.

OUR COMMITMENT TO ERADICATING MODERN SLAVERY

We are committed to ensuring that there is no modern slavery or human trafficking in our supply chains or in any part of our Institution. Our ethos as a specialist medical and health sciences institution teaching vocational courses which emphasise ethical conduct reflects our commitment to acting ethically and with integrity in all our business relationships and to implementing and enforcing effective systems and controls to ensure slavery and human trafficking is not taking place anywhere in our supply chains.

DUE DILIGENCE PROCESSES FOR SLAVERY AND HUMAN TRAFFICKING

As part of our initiative to identify and mitigate risk we:

- (a) Include a requirement for compliance with the Act in our due diligence process for the validation of new partners and include requirements for compliance with the Act in all our agreements.
- (b) Kingston University, which manages all our procurement for us, use a procurement tool where all new suppliers are requested to complete a questionnaire to confirm arrangements in place across supply chains. We also undertake much of our procurement via the London Universities Purchasing Consortium which itself has publicly committed to tackling slavery and human rights abuses in its supply chains, and to acquiring goods and services for its members without causing harm to others.
- (c) The Institution also has a policy of not employing unpaid interns across its workforce.

We have in place systems to:

- (a) Identify and assess potential risk areas in our supply chains
- (b) Mitigate the risk of slavery and human trafficking occurring in our supply chains
- (c) Monitor potential risk areas in our supply chains
- (d) Protect whistle blowers

TRAINING

To ensure a high level of understanding of the risks of modern slavery and human trafficking in our supply chains and our business, we will be providing training to our staff.

FURTHER STEPS

We will work during this year to review the effectiveness of the steps we have taken to ensure that there is no slavery or human trafficking in our supply chains.

This statement is made pursuant to section 54(1) of the Modern Slavery Act 2015 and constitutes our slavery and human trafficking statement for the financial year ending July 2016.
