Dear Mr. Pichai,

Sonen Capital is an impact investment management firm dedicated to providing clients with investment solutions that achieve competitive financial returns alongside meaningful and measurable social and environmental impact. Our clients, as well as the undersigned organizations and individuals on whose behalf we are writing, are investors in Google and Alphabet Inc.

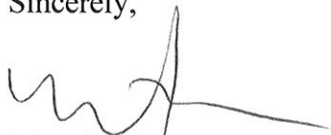

It was with a mixed reaction that we learned of Google's commitment to invest in the Lake Turkana Wind Power project in northern Kenya. We stand in staunch support of Google's broad commitment to address climate change, including its focus on supporting the development of clean energy infrastructure, its own internal energy efficiency efforts, and the more than $2billion it has deployed to clean energy projects.

However, addressing climate change must be done with attentiveness to human rights, respect for indigenous peoples and in concert with local ecosystem needs. We are deeply concerned by reports of violence, displacement and environmental damage associated with the Lake Turkana Wind Power Project.

With this in mind, we are writing to ask for more information about Google's process for ensuring that its energy investments are aligned with the UN Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples and the UN Guiding Principles on Business and Human Rights. In particular, we are seeking a deeper understanding of Google's process for ensuring Free, Prior and Informed Consent within indigenous communities impacted by Google's suppliers or by its own projects. To provide context for this request, we have enclosed "A Business Reference Guide to the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples" as a reference document.

We look forward to speaking with you about this issue, and hope that we might schedule a conversation before Thanksgiving. Please contact Meredith Benton, at either mbenton@sonencapital.com or (415) 528-3617, so that we might begin our discussion.

Sincerely,

Meredith Benton
