Drummond rejects accusations in German documentary

Regarding the information in Germany's Deutsche Welle (DW) documentary "Paid Assassin", Drummond Ltd. is emphatic in stating:

- Drummond Ltd. and its executives do not have, nor have they ever had any ties with illegal organizations, regardless of their origin.
- Drummond has prevailed in every case filed against it in the US based on allegations of collaboration with paramilitaries. In those instances, it was established that several witnesses who testified against the company, including alias Samario, received financial compensation for their testimony. This led a federal judge in the United States to find probable cause that Terry Collingsworth, the attorney who filed the lawsuits against Drummond, participated in the bribery and perjury of witnesses.
- Since the beginning of its operations in Colombia, at the end of the 80s, the company has adhered to the laws that govern the country, and has adopted the Voluntary Principles on Security and Human Rights, as well as the Guiding Principles on the United Nations on Human Rights and Business.
- We reiterate that Drummond Ltd. and its executives do not have, nor have they ever had any ties with illegal organizations.
