ExxonMobil Statement in Response to InfluenceMap Report

ExxonMobil is committed to providing affordable energy to support human progress while advancing effective solutions to address the risks of climate change. We support the Paris Agreement as it provides the first major global framework to address climate change in a meaningful way while also ensuring accessible and affordable energy supplies throughout the world. A significant challenge is that the technologies currently don't exist at scale across the transportation, industrial and power sectors to meet future energy demand while reducing emissions to the levels required to achieve a 2-degree C pathway envisioned by the Paris agreement. We are working to develop scalable solutions that drive long-term value – as demonstrated by our longstanding commitment to fundamental research, and collaborations with academia, industry and commercial partners. We've spent more than $9 billion since 2000 focused on researching, developing and deploying lower-emission solutions.
