

We are making consistent efforts towards ensuring the rights of workers vulnerable to forced labour in global supply chains, whether directly or indirectly linked to us, and have declared and published our corporate policies as our commitment to responsible business conduct and respect for human rights, including combatting forced labour. These policies, the “Marubeni Group Basic Policy on Human Rights” and the “Basic Supply Chain Sustainability Policy”*, which apply to all of our group companies, have been shared with our suppliers, and we have been continuously requesting their understanding and cooperation.

*The details of these policies and our relevant initiatives can be found in the following corporate website:

With respect to Trina Solar, in addition to the above, as part of our due diligence process we have obtained their written assurance that they do not have links to forced labour.
